Members of the Engineering Faculty:

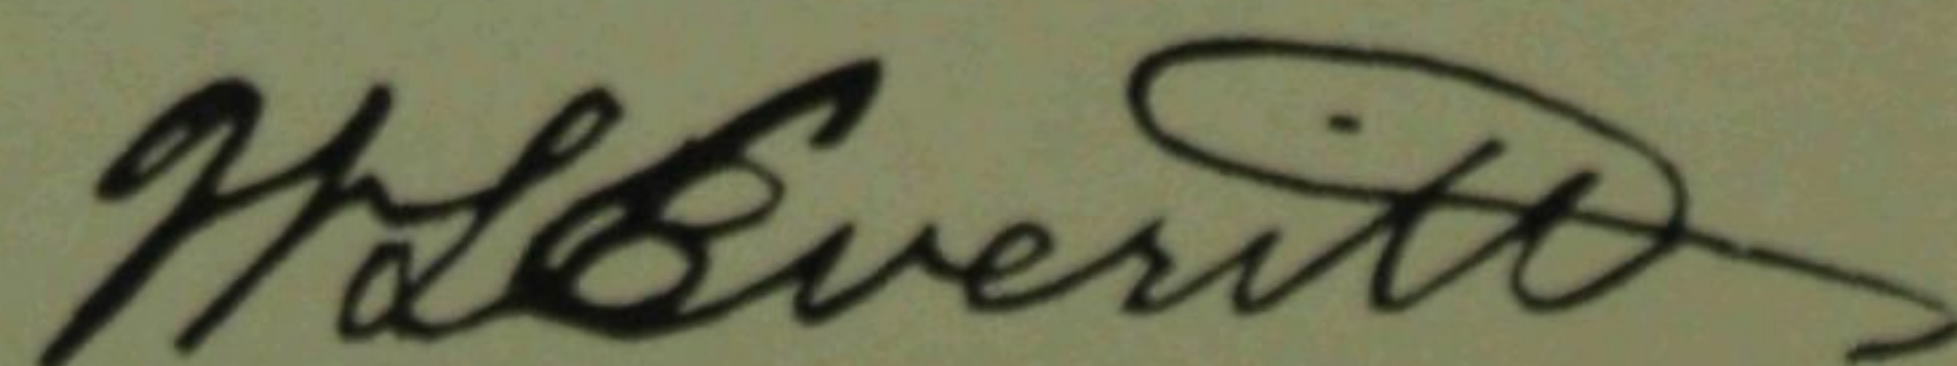

Gentlemen:

Again, I have agreed with the students in charge of Engineering Open House that we should dismiss all classes in the Engineering College beginning at 9 o'clock Friday, March 10, and continuing through Friday and Saturday.

This Open House is a part of our Centennial year celebration and we hope it will be a particularly significant one. As in the past we are not starting at 8 o'clock because we do not want students to regard this as a free weekend. In fact, I would appreciate your making the point with your classes that they should be available as guides and assistants to the various projects. It is important that our hospitality go beyond the invitation to visit. Only a full complement of students will make our welcome a reality for our guests from all over the state. I hope that you, too, will give the students every assistance you can, both in preparing for Open House and acting as hosts during the event. Many visitors will be asking questions which only you can answer.

Those students who are involved in exhibits might well be excused individually by instructors at 8 o'clock. Any who are so excused from 8 o'clock classes may be expected to make up the work of the class hour if the class is held. The use of certain laboratory, drafting room, and classroom areas for exhibits may cause individual departments to wish to cancel early classes, but I suggest in this case that students in these classes should be expected to help in final preparation of exhibits.

Sincerely,

WLE:mm
